MARY BALDWIN COLLEGE

Student Life

Jenny Talbott shows her exhaustion after a long day of unpacking.

Sunday night of orientation week, the famous bannana eating contest...can the freshmen do it?!?

Charmice Hardy and Chi Chi are fast friends!

Orientation, the important part of college. Orientation is the time to learn what to do, where things are located, and you get the chance to meet some new people. Mary Baldwin puts together an incredible orientation weekend that gives freshmen the opportunity to learn the ways of college before classes start. Freshmen have time to get adjusted and ready for class.

the time to learn

2.

1. Know the codes is an important orientation session. During this question and answer freshmen can ask about rules and regulation on campus.

2. Meeting roommates is important during orientation. Rachelle Carter and Nico Jimmerson are pictured here in their 'new' room.

3. The 'Real Deal' allows the orientation staff the chance to portray scenarios of situations that, hopefully, will not happen.

boxes cars bags and college

When freshmen come to campus everyone lends a hand to make them feel comfortable. Upperclass women help move-in their belongings, give them directions, and help them understand the senior cut line in the dinning hall. The freshmen soon learn the ways here at Mary Baldwin and the following year, play the helpful sister role that is called upon them.

1. The Executive Committee always lends a hand to help new freshmen move-in and get acquainted with Mary Baldwin.
2. The opening of the mail box can prove to be tricky but the mail contained within is always exciting.

3.

3. Numerous organizations on campus lend a hand on move-in day. The Judicial Board is dearly awaiting incoming freshmen.

The buying of

the joining of spirit

Charter Day is a long standing tradition here at Mary Baldwin College. Every fall the incoming freshmen class has to sign the Honor Pledge saying that they will not lie, cheat, or steal. The freshmen, by signing this pledge, are held to the same high standards the rest of the campus has previously pledged to. By keeping this pledge and living it day-by-day the integrity of Mary Baldwin will continue.

1. The professors look on as the freshmen, one-by-one sign the pledge.

2. Freshmen anxiously await their turns to walk up and sign the pledge after it is explained in detail by the Judicial Board and Honor Council Board Chairwomen.

3.

3. Once freshmen have signed the pledge they are part of the Mary Baldwin community.

the day to play!

Apple Day 2002 was a time to get sun and fun. Students had a variety of options at the carnival. There was a moon bounce, tug-of-war, bobbing for apples, face painting, and a race course. Students also had cotton candy and coke. The sophomore class, or the class of 2005 did a wonderful job putting together a great carnival!

1. Friends, fun and laughter describe Apple Day at Mary Baldwin. upside down things still look the same.

3. A large slide marked the end of the obstacle course at the Apple Day carnival.

5.

4. Cotton candy galore!

5. The moon bounce was a popular place to just let go.

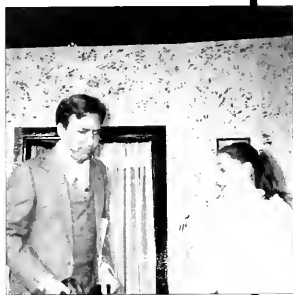

An interesting shot of the moon bounce featured at the Apple Day carnival.

Can she hit her opponent with the force that is needed? Jousting fights allowed students with an excuse to hit or be hit.

the art of theater

Every college has an acting program and the one at Mary Baldwin College challenges students to perform in their best roles every. The theater department has five or six main shows every year and brings in members from the community to play in the additional roles that are present in the shows. Good job in all of the performances this year!

one very special night

Every junior at Mary Baldwin counts down the days in the fall until Junior Dads. Junior Dads is a tradition at Mary Baldwin where juniors receive their class rings. Whether the ring comes from a father, mother, sister, or brother, the event is a special time for the student, marking the junior year. There is a ball where you can dance the night away with friends and family.

3.

1. Along with the ball there is a dinner at the dinning hall. The food is always wonderful and the atmosphere relaxed.

2. Waiting is the hardest part. These juniors stand in line awaiting turns to walk across the stage and receive her ring.

3. Sarah Gooch takes time out from dancing to snap a quick picture with President Tyson. Congratulations Gooch!

A kodak moment with mother, daughter, and President Tyson.

On Friday night there is a dessert party that gives the juniors the chance to mingle with friends.

Kyra Blaino, Stephanie McCoy, Tiffany Riddick, and LaQuisha King, are ready to get down at the ball.

Student Life

Thought this picture is not usually associated with Signature Ball these seniors know how to have fun in the snow.

This group of juniors are having fun at the dance.

Students at Mary Baldwin always look forward to the annual Signature Ball dance. The dance is a winter break for fun and festivities. Students bring dates or hang out with friends. At the dance there is a casino set up along with a beer garden for those who are 21 and over. This year the theme was Arabian Nights and Hunt was covered in fabric and bright colors. This event is hosted by the Baldwin Program Board.

the spirit of dancing

1. For these freshmen this is the first signature ball. Hope you're having fun ladies.

2. Two smiling faces show that the dance is both enjoyable and fun.

Class of 2003

Four years of friends, memories, laughter, and tears.

The class of 2003 has finished the journey through four years of college with fond memories and friends. Through the hard times and the good friends were made and knowledge was gained. The class of 2003 has overgone change both in themselves and in the college and have become mature, understanding women ready to enter into the world and partake in what it has to offer. Good luck out there and always remember the home you found here at Mary Baldwin.

Joy Garrett is all smiles. Congratulations on your graduation!

Where ideas and thoughts are expressed.

Every Baldwin student knows that learning is fundamental. At Mary Baldwin professors demand the best out of students daily. From Political Science to History to Biology, each major is demanding and requires efforts from both the student and the professor to achieve greatness. Mary Baldwin graduates are successful upon graduation due to the preparation Mary Baldwin provides.

Bringing the Clubs Together

The Inner Club Council was founded a few years ago as a resources for clubs. The Executive Committee Treasurer serves as the President on the ICC and has a board underneath her to help aid in the running of the network. This council was a needed and highly used source for clubs to gain publicity, cosponsor events, and meet others seeking recognition within clubs. The ICC provides line of communication among clubs here at Mary Baldwin College. Thank you, ICC leadership, for helping extend networks on campus.
